

Apprenticeships are a vital part of developing our workforce...

“The program sets a benchmark for all that youth training should aim to achieve in our industry.” (CoolWorld judge Alan Obrart)

Award Winning Apprentice program

Haden were recently announced winners at the inaugural COOLworld Awards 2008 for the Best Apprentice Program Award.

This award recognised Haden’s “outstanding commitment to employing refrigeration and air conditioning apprentices; providing a working environment in which their apprentice employees can best learn and develop their industry and life skills; and an outstanding level of interest in their apprentice employees’ overall welfare.”

Haden’s decentralised program includes induction, mentoring, team rotations, formalised trades training programs, internal values programs and a range of support measures designed to ensure that apprentices develop the professional and personal skills required to become successful, active members of the HVAC industry.

The Coolworld Awards were established by Climate Control News to recognize and applaud excellence and innovation in the Australian HVAC&R sector. The award program is designed to embrace the need to keep the country heading into a more sustainable and environmentally stable environment.
